

About SiteBud

SiteBud - Web Site Design Tool, is the next version of the award-winning PC based web-authoring software developed by 101ware over the past 3 years.

SiteBud is a cute and wacky robot that assists novice and intermediate web site builders to create professional looking sites without having to learn any code. Essentially, SiteBud plays the role of geek, handling all those confusing programming acronyms like HTML, CGI, Java, JS, and FTP, while you play the role of artist. With a little help from SiteBud, you can create professional looking web sites quicker than you can say ... well ... "Professional looking web sites!"

With a windows-esque interface, easy to use drag'n'drop features, and numerous plug-ins, SiteBud will help the novice Internet user create professional looking web sites without compromising on power or quality. SiteBud also provides a comprehensive help index, tutorials, and a dedicated support site (www.SiteBudSupport.com) where you can find numerous resources and tips for making your web site.

At present, the only form of distribution is direct to consumers (for US$39.95). As well as being able to purchase SiteBud through www.SiteBud.com, those interested in the program can also download a fully featured 21-day trial version.

A Lite version of SiteBud has also been released recently. This version has limited features and restricts users from inserting certain features into web pages they create. Like the trial version it is free, however unlike the trial version, there is no time limit on its use.

Here are 5 reasons why SiteBud is the man ... or rather the robot:

- Quick, intuitive, and easy to use. With it's wizards, tutorials and help tips, SiteBud is so simple to pickup you'll be publishing your web pages in no time.
- Muscle power. Although it's easy to use, SiteBud doesn't skimp on the powerful features. Java Scripts and Java applets are added with the plugin wizard.
- You're the boss. SiteBud's drag'n'drop WYSIWYG (what you see is what you get) interface makes you the boss! It isn't a boring fill-in-the-blanks template editor.
- SiteBud does the geek stuff. Java, JavaScript, CGI, HTML, FTP, Huh? You don't know how to code? No problem. SiteBud loves to do it so you can just stick to releasing your creativity!
- Support Overload. We're so committed to making sure you have not problems, we have an exclusive support site - www.SiteBudSupport.com.

Reviewers and Users Comments

ZDNet Review

SiteBud is one of the easiest ways for the novice Webmaster to create a site in literally just a few minutes. Many similar programs claim to do this, but SiteBud actually delivers, and it includes many of the features that can make the difference between a run-of-the-mill site and one that stands out from the crowd. An exceptionally easy interface lets you quickly set up your site, using a step-by-step wizard or adding elements manually.

No knowledge of HTML is needed. The WYSIWYG editor lets you effortlessly design your site with control over all elements, such as headings, text, images, and more, until you get a page that you're satisfied with. You can use tables, lists, and forms and try nine included Java applets to spiff up your site. An included FTP client lets you upload your finished site directly to your server. The documentation is excellent and is written in plain English rather than computerese.

Program Pros

- Extremely easy to use
- Requires no HTML knowledge
- WYSIWYG editing
- Well written, plain English documentation
- Plenty of options
- Integral FTP client

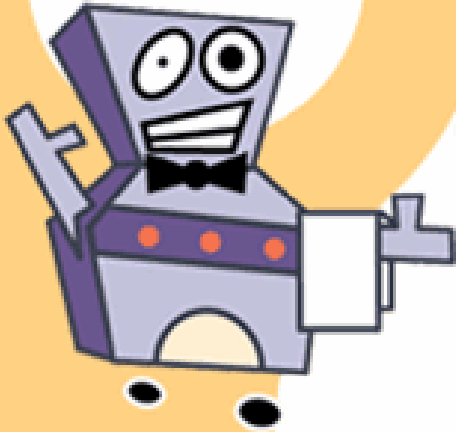

Program Cons

- None
