

The second level

The atmosphere becomes damp, the walls are uneven, the passages seem narrower. Somewhere at a distance, water trickles faintly.

It's the only noise you can hear here — beside your own steps — in the darkness of the old mines.