

The July 1944 issue of SPEED ADVENTURE STORIES features the usual assortment of pseudonymous works, including Justin Case's "The General Comes to Town" (masking the identity of pulp giant Hugh Cave, also present under his own name with "Donovan's Island"), Clive Trent with "Sea-Lubber McShane" (penname of Victor Rousseau, who also appeared under his own name with "Ghost of Empire") and Robert A. Garron (hiding the identity of Howard Wandrei) with "Call Them Mongeys".
