32 Bitness: You're still running 16-bit apps? So, how's that state-of-the-art 286 doing?

95: The year's almost over. Can the Windows version be far behind?

Collegiate Crackers: Are you a computer science undergraduate student looking for a job? Hack Netscape, then check your e-mail for job offers. Vanity Domain Names. Now that the National Science institute charges $50 a year, maybe the days of www.americas cheesexperts.com are over.

> Plus Packs: How do you increase your revenues by 30 percent? Hold on to a few useful utilities, pad the CD-ROM with fluff, and onarge $40.

Hotel Gyms: Laptops and their peripherals have become so light, they're useless for bench pressing. Newspapers: The New York Times Wall Street Journal, and every other newspaper under the sun is online. Who ne eds wood pulp anyway?
