

STREAMLINED MIDDLEWARE

Teknekron's Rendezvous Software Bus will provide interface adapters that let diverse applications running on different machines and operating systems share and update data. The software bus is communications middleware that lets PC applications share real-time information regardless of where it originates on large corporate networks.