

Thank you for trying DOCMaker!

Please be aware that DOCMaker requires a commercial use license from Green Mountain Software. If you are a commercial user you will need to register for commercial use. Version 4.1.1 does not require a commercial use license and is also available for downloading. See the licensing information in the DOCMaker Licensing Information document for the details.

DOCMaker gives you the Macintosh™ user powerful tools for creating self executing multimedia documents containing graphics, information, and links to other software and information. By incorporating QuickTime™ Video, sound, AppleEvents™, “Hot Picture Buttons” and more, documents that you create can become an exciting multimedia experience for your readers. No other software is needed by the reader to open, print, and fully experience your documents. The “viewer engine” is embedded into the documents to make distribution and use a simple and easy process.

Green Mountain Software has been creating innovative software products for the Macintosh™ community since 1986. Our philosophy has always been to provide true utility, intuitiveness and ease of use. User feedback and extensive testing have helped keep Green Mountain Software products award winning examples of quality workmanship. We are proud of our craft and we are proud to present the latest release of the premier multimedia document creator.

DOCMaker documents may now be opened into DOCMaker by dragging their icons to the DOCMaker icon. This requires System 7. If this does not work on your Mac after installing DOCMaker, you will need to copy DOCMaker v4.7 to your main hard disk (the one with your System Folder) and then rebuild your desktop. To rebuild the desktop, you need to restart your Macintosh while holding down the command and option keys. Hold these keys down UNTIL you get the rebuild desktop dialog.

Thank you again for your support - it is appreciated.
