

Not that Dante had ever seen such sails - his thoughts were entirely irrespective of the form of canvas in any ship of the period: but it is a page which will be able to attract this happy image to those felucca sails, as they now float white and soft above the blue glowing of the sea;
 No other images
 wanting in them.

