The File Room
<http://fileroom.aaup.uic.edu/FileRoom/documents/homepage.html>

A rather large and comprehensive catalogued list of censored resources and materials. Most of this material has been either banned in public or school libraries or has been banned from various countries and/or political and religious structures due to the content of the material. Not quite a full blown learning or educational resource and not quite an "alternative" site, this site is still unusual in its content and scope. Remember - not all banned works are necessarily pornographical as much of what has become to be banned is ideological or religious in nature. There are many different genres included here - from works of art to works of literary merit to blatant propoganda and religious ranting. In the right hands the pen is thy sword and the words created are sharp and cut deeply.

The old adage, "sticks and stones will break my bones but names will never hurt me", is given little credence by many people in power. This place on the web is a very worthwhile site to visit as it will give you (hopefully) a deeper understanding of various cultures by what they *don't* allow and may let you re-define or view the words, thoughts and concepts of "freedom" and "freedom of speech" in a whole different way. This site should merit at least one visit by anyone connected to the WWW. Grab your surfboard and catch a wave over to this web page - and learn.

Baby Gothic
<http://bazaar.com/megadeath/baby/baby.html>

This site is one step beyond abnormal and is truly weird and eerie. Well rendered and high quality graphics of gothic baby nightmarish pictures. Some are bizarrely beautiful while others will give the little ones many sleepless nights. Others are blatantly childish attempts at gothic fright but most of these images will be rolling 'round your mind for some time...
