INVRC501.ARJ	508490	02-06-95	InVircible Anti-Virus, Version 5.01 (January 30, 1993). This anti-virus software is much more sophisticated and effective than any other anti-virus product available or anticipated. It is the only anti-virus package able to state that every single virus in the three known virus classes (Boot Sector, FAT/Directory, Executables) has been to date detected and removed -- a track record that dates back to the Autumn of 1990! InVircible implements Adaptive Expert System (AES) technology that is uncanny in the ability to absolutely detect viruses and then completely and exactly restore the infected executables, and doing this without needing to "know" or "name" the infecting virus. AES technology omits the need to obtain regular "updates", and it omits the need to move your executables, and it omits the need to run a TSR or device driver, and it omits the need to install a hardware card, and it omits the need to worry about whether your anti-virus software "knows" the specific virus bugging your PC. Once InVircible secures an executable, you will absolutely know whether it has been attacked by a virus. The Shareware edition of InVircible is identical to the full version. Shareware InVircible gives the information needed to delete and replace infected executables. The full version adds the option to completely restore infected executables 99.99+% of the time (close to being perfect!). All restorations are exact, so you can't tell
