DRIVING MISS WINDOWS

Wolly also noted that the newest driver for the Diamond Stealth 24 (his video board) just arrived this week and will be in next week's listing. Peruse this issue's double-week listing of new Windows and OS/2 files for all the latest treasures!

THERE'S MORE THAN ONE WAY TO SKIN A CAT

. . . all of which are unpleasant. In spite of that, Wolly would like to pass on a tip about the Windows Help system that WOLRS uses. Didja ever want to print out a section of WOLRS without all the graphics? Didja ever want to search the Windows New File Listing for a specific keyword?

You can, of course, select the Print Topic command from the menu to print the graphics and all, but that can be very time consuming for your system and printer and allows no searching other than visual. Use the Edit command to pop up a dialog box as shown:

SET HOOK

IN ◀▶ OUT

Great artwork, great sound effects, and great fun if you have the patience! Pick your rod and reel and cast your chosen lure, bait or jig over the side. Scan the fish finder and set your depth. This first time effort from 2 Guys Software is quite nicely done. There are nineteen WAV files that accompany your efforts and provide atmosphere as you await your first strike. Set the hook, play and use your skill to reel him in. Throw 'em back if they don't meet local laws or risk an encounter with the law, or deposit your catch in the ice chest. WinFish is a healthy download and will occupy 2.6 megs on your drive once installed, and requires a minimum 3 megs RAM and 16 color VGA; 256 colors and 4 megs+ are recommended; the artwork is much improved over the 16 color rendition shown here. Registration for WINFISH.ZIP (729K) is $19.00 that includes a disk, a guidebook and sticker for your car.

THE BEAR AND THE BEE
Interspeciel Marriage

LeftJustified Publiks publishes an original children's' story on the PC using the vehicle of a Windows Help File (Hmmm . . . what a concept!). Limited by 16 colors, the graphics are a bit rough but acceptable for the kiddies. Pointing and clicking on objects on screen results in a popup word description, like "door" or "wall," a nice idea. However, while the rhyme is good, the story is consistently violent, seemingly following the long tradition of Mother Goose's predilection for shoving witches into ovens and poisoning princesses. And to top if off, after pages of repeated bee-breaking, the protagonists run off together! The moral is literally "if you love someone, keep coming back even though they beat the hell out of you each time you see them, and eventually they will accept you." Great concept. Let's bring domestic violence to the PC. While Wolly thinks the publisher is onto something with the help file/child story concept, it's time to put on the Siskel-Ebert hat and give BEARBEE.ZIP (172K) a big double thumbs down. The program was run for the mother of a toddler, and she agreed that she would not share this with her child. It is not just unacceptable, it is abhorrent. Registration for this story is $6.00. We hope to see others more suitable for kiddie consumption.

ECNEUQES??
Say WHAT?
This game, also known as Sequence, is a combination card and board game. The object is to make two rows of five chips each on the board. You can place your chip only if you have a corresponding card in your hand. It was a good game to play, but the graphics are a bit unfocused if your monitor is not .28, making it difficult to tell a spade from a club. ECNEUQ11.ZIP (141K) is yours for a $10.00 registration.

NED'S WORLD
Neural Ned is a game with a different head
Here's a game with a completely different slant on negotiating creatures through mazes and avoiding bodily injury. You don't move Ned, Ned moves himself based on what you have taught him. This is Ned's brain. This is Ned's brain on Wolly. Understand??? Teach Ned well, and he avoids the obstacles or at least knows how to deal with them to advance to the next level. Good opportunity to see if your own neural net is big enough to catch anything. NEDWLD10.ZIP (105K) can be registered for $13.95.

WINMATH
Summer refresher

It's almost back to school time (I know because of the piles of notebook paper in the aisles of KMart) and time to relearn that math we forgot over the summer. WinMath can drill your young ones with arithmetic from any of the four functions. Choose the level using the bar on the bottom of the display, specifying the highest number that can be involved in the problem, and the category of math. This is a mouse-only program; the keypad cannot be used to enter responses. Correct answers are rewarded with a quietly appearing dialog box labeled "Correct!". Inaccuracy results in a seven bell salute (the default Windows "beep," repeated), totally embarrassing the student. WNMATH11.ZIP (45K) can be registered for $15.00.

QUICK WAV
Toodles!

Author Steven Stern presents us with a freeware package to scan and play selections from your WAV collection. This is a much quicker approach than constantly loading files into the Recorder, and QWAV20.ZIP will help you figure out what Ren & Stimpy say in R&S14.WAV more quickly and easily. Thanks, Steven, you've earned a place in Wolly's SOUND subdirectory.

WAVY Gravy?*

As quickly as somebody comes up with a better idea, someone comes up with a better better idea, although this one isn't free, as the liberal nag screens will remind you. Hazard Soft suggests you use the Windows file association ability to tie WAV files to its WY102.EXE program. Just double-click on any uncompressed WAV file and it plays. Now. No interface, no buttons, no nuttin'. Handy. Nice. No muss-no fuss. I like it. WY102.ZIP (32K) can be registered for $10.00 to avoid being annoyed.

*the first reader old enough to get this obscure reference to leave Wolly a message will get absolutely no prize, but recognition that they are also getting old.

NAME OF THE GAME is the hint
Toggle Booleans brings another card game to the shareware market, although this one is less a game than it is a puzzle. You are presented with a group of cards and the "name of the game" that hints at its objective. Select a card to play next based on your guess as to the point of the game. If wrong, it will not be placed in the proper area. Hints are available as are an option to take back your move. This BBS version titled NAMEGM10.ZIP (51K) is presented as freeware and contains fifteen puzzles. Register for $20.00 and receive the full version with over fifty puzzles to work through.

TYPE FACIAL
Another twist
When In Search Of the proper font you generally have some idea of the style, be it casual, formal and the like. Type Facial can provide some organization to your collection printouts that others don't offer. View and then move your fonts into different category lists (see graphic dropdown) based on where they fit in best. Now, Wolly might have preferred Sans Serif, perhaps Script, etc., but at least you have seven places to put your typographical treasures. Once you've slotted your choices, you can print out reference lists. Unfortunately, the catalog is a bit odd, using the font itself to print the name of the selection, bumping the starting point of that font's Aa Bb Cc (or text --- I'll leave that surprise for you to discover) to uneven points on the page so you can't compare font widths or characters adjacent to one another. Also, you'd better stay with twelve point or so, because the printout spacing won't change and you'll have fonts overprinting other fonts. A nice feature is the ability to bring up a box displaying the current font, which remains as you bring up another font for comparison purposes, but you'd better close the box before exiting the program or you won't like the result. TYPEFAC2.ZIP (71K), surprisingly, is release 2.0, but I'd like to see some cleanup and improvements in a version 3.0 before I'd register for $14.00.

WinJPEG 2.41

Anyone involved in using their computer for word processing or desktop publishing quickly learns the importance of graphics.   Whether the graphic is a simple gray scale drawing or a color photograph, graphics play an important part in most publications.   Although graphics are quite important to most publications, most graphic formats carry a heavy overhead in disk space.   A simple one page publication with one gray scale drawing and a black and white photograph, for example, can easily occupy 300k to 500k of disk space.   If you have gigabytes of hard drive space this may not be a problem.   But, for most of us, just a few of these files on our system can easily fill up a complete hard drive.

To solve this problem one method has been to compress the graphics on the hard drive. Here the standard compression formats such as ZIP, ARC, LHA and others are used to reduce the overall size of these graphics.   The problem with this method is that the compressed graphic file must first be uncompressed before it can be used.   Then, you not only have the full size graphic on your system, but the compressed file as well.   If disk space is tight, this can be more of a problem than simply storing the graphic in its native format.   An alternate method of compressing graphics is with the JPEG (Joint Photographic Experts Group) format.   This file format greatly reduces the file size while retaining all essential elements.   To give you an example of the type of compression the JPEG format offers I converted a black and white photograph in a TIF format.   The initial TIF file was 128,542k.   After converting the file to the JPG format the file size was 21,155k.

The program I used to make this conversion was WinJPEG.   The WinJPEG program is a shareware image viewer with image processing and conversion capabilities.   The Unregistered version is a fully functional 286 version of the program.   The registered version is furnished with both 286 and 386 versions of the program.   Although the JPEG conversion is a principle feature of this program, it is also a very good graphic viewer as well.   When working with graphic files, one of the first tools you'll need is a good graphics viewer.   WinJPEG fills this requirement nicely.   In addition to *.JPG formats, the program may also be used for TIFF, Targa, GIF, PCX, and Windows BMP graphic files.

The program also allows you to manipulate the image in many ways.   These include: rotation, vertical and horizontal flip, image cropping and image resizing.   You also have a range of color manipulation options as well.   These options include adjusting the RGB (red, green, and blue) balance, hue, saturation, and brightness adjustments, and color to gray scale conversions.   The program also has image capture capabilities.   Here you can select between capturing   the complete window, the client area, or a portion of the entire desktop.

So, if you work with graphics, the WinJPEG program is certainly something you should look at and consider adding to your system.   Members of Windows OnLine can find WinJPEG as WINJP231.ZIP in Directory #21 - (Windows-Graphic, Paint/Design/CAD).   The shareware version of this program is 2.31.   When you register the program you'll receive version 2.41.
