4A Launch Quick Instructions

The 4A Launch interface is essentially a specially modified Open dialog box that is restricted to BAT, COM, EXE, and PIF files. When 4A Launch is initially loaded, it will default to the main Windows directory. To launch an application, simply do the following:

Choose the appropriate drive from the volume list on the right side of the 4A Launch window.

Double-click on the correct subdirectory from the list under the volume designation (if you choose a subdirectory that has more subdirectories under it, the list will change to reflect this).

To launch the application of your choice, either double-click on the filename from the file list on the left side of the window, or click once on the filename, then press the RUN button at the top of the screen.

As an added bonus, you can use the Run Size box to choose how the application will be launched (either maximized, normal, or minimized).
