

the Power Manager failed to acknowledge a communication from another component that the component initiated.

What to do

You will probably have to replace the main circuit board of your computer. Before you do that, be sure that the small 9 volt battery (located just behind the main battery) is still good. If it isn't, replace it and your problem MAY go away.