KSP's Sound Files for Solitaire & Solitaire II
for Windows

KSP's Sound Files

Thank you for trying KSP's solitaire programs. This set of files supplements either KSP's Solitaire for Windows V. 2.1 or KSP's Solitaire II for Windows V. 2.1, both of which are shareware programs. You are free to use these programs for 30 days as a trial period. After that time, you should either register the programs or erase them from your system. Please support the Shareware system, and register these programs. If you have registered, many thanks!

Setup

If you received this file from KSP, put the disk in your drive A or B. From the file menu in either the Windows Program Manager or the Windows File Manager, select "File" "Run" and enter "A:\ Setup" or "B:\Setup". Follow the prompts during the setup. All files are listed below.

If you downloaded the file from a bulletin board or on line service, follow these directions. Place the file KSPFILES.ZIP in the same directory as your KSP Solitaire or Solitaire II files. If you have both programs, you should repeat the process for both directories. Use an unzipping program, and follow that program's instructions to unzip all of the files. Run the solitaire program, and you should have the song and sound abilities of the program.

There are 2 sound files in this zip file, KSPSONGS.LIB and KSPSNDS.LIB. In addition, this file, KSPFILES.WRI, is included.

Caution: If any of these files are missing, you do not have the full copy of the program. Notify your bulletin board or software supplier that the file you received was doctored.

Definition of Shareware

Shareware distribution gives users the best software at the best prices. The user can have a chance to try software before buying it. If you try a shareware program and continue using it after a designated time (30 days for this program), you are required to register it. This is done on the "honor system" and provides the user the ultimate in money back guarantees. If you don't like the program, simply don't register it. Using the program past the designated time without registering is a violation of the temporary license agreement between you, the user, and the shareware author. By not registering, many good shareware authors are discouraged from offering further examples of their wares. If you use the program and like the program, then register!

Copyright laws that apply to retail software, also apply to shareware, and the copyright holder retains all rights. Shareware is a distribution method, not a type of software. Shareware is the "try before you buy" method of distribution. Because the overhead is lower, prices are lower also.

Distributing

You are encouraged to copy and pass along to friends this copy of the shareware version of KSP's Solitaire. If you do so, you must provide them with the original, unaltered set of files shown under the Setup section of these instructions. Do not copy the files off your hard drive for distribution. Instead, pass along the KSPSOLIT.ZIP file. This file, unaltered, contains all the needed files for the shareware version of this program. If you register your copy, do not pass along the registered version. If you intend to charge for distribution, please read and comply with the requirements of the "Message to Vendors" section of this file.

Message to Vendors

This section provides information for all shareware distributors, vendors, BBS's and computer clubs wanting to distribute this software.

KSP Software is the exclusive copyright holder for this software, and reserves the right to restrict distribution if deemed necessary. The software is defined as those files listed under the Setup section beginning on page 1 above. If the software listed is not present in the compressed file, then distribution is prohibited as the file has been altered. The restrictions listed below must be adhered to in order to distribute this software.

We would like to know who is distributing this software, and would like to be notified by anyone doing so, or wishing to do so. It is not necessary to notify KSP Software before distributing the software.

Vendors, etc. who notify KSP Software of their intention to distribute this software will be notified in return of upgrades, or new products available from KSP.

No price or other compensation may be charged for this software. A distribution fee of no more than US$5.00 may be charged to cover production and handling costs. The name "KSP Software" must be used in connection with any ads or promotions for this software, and the name "KSP's Solitaire for Windows" or "KSP's Solitaire II for Windows" should also be included.

This software cannot be sold as part of another inclusive product, nor included with any commercial software package without a written agreement with KSP Software. If a vendor wishes to distribute this software as part of a collection, permission must first be obtained from KSP Software.

This software cannot be leased or rented to anyone. This software cannot be listed as "Freeware", "Free Software", "Public Domain Software", or the like. It is strictly shareware and must be treated as such. No one is permitted to modify, sell, recompile, disassemble, or otherwise reverse engineer this software. All rights not expressly granted herein are reserved by KSP Software.

Please forward copies of any literature, catalog, review, article or other information you print or distribute regarding this software.
