When I open these files the text extends past the margin of the screen. I click on the document bar and the page layout option and change the right margin from the default (usually 1.25") to 4". This allows me to easily read the document. However, I need to repeat this for every one. Is there a way to set up the default to remain at the 4" setting? I thoroughly enjoy the NAUTILUS program and am looking forward to future issues!

We recently experienced this same problem which enabled us to determine the cause. Go to the Printers applet in the Windows Control Panel and choose Setup. You will then find a box giving two options: "Portrait" and "Landscape". The "Portrait" option needs to be selected in order to see the entire document (8 1/2 " x 11") without changing the margins. The "Landscape" option displays the document with a width of 11". Be sure the "Portrait" option is selected, this sets the default for all Write files.
