A. UPGRADING

Upgrading from V6.x

Before installing the new version be sure to uninstall your existing version (choose the Add/Remove Programs Applet in Control Panel).

The first time you run this new version you will need to choose Browse on the login screen to select your diary file.

DO NOT use the Diary Conversion Wizard. Diaries created with V6.x are completely compatible with this version.

Upgrading from V4.x or V5.x

DO NOT uninstall your existing copy of My Personal Diary because it will remove all your configuration settings and you should have these to run the Diary Conversion Wizard described below. Simply install the new version to the same directory that you have your previous copy installed in. Setup will update the necessary files automatically.

My Personal Diary now stores all entries in a single encrypted, compressed file. If you have an existing diary created with a previous version you must use the Diary Conversion Wizard (DCW) to import your diary. The DCW is installed with MPD and takes your existing entries and copies them into a new diary file in the new format.

When the DCW asks for your old password make sure you enter it EXACTLY as you did for your existing diary. If you mistype the password and you have uninstalled your old version the DCW will have no way of verifying the password and will assume that it is correct. In this case your entries will not be converted correctly (the text in them will be scrambled) and you will have to repeat the conversion with the correct password.
