CompuServe basic services have no symbol next to them on menus, making them easy to identify. Extended services, which are available at an hourly rate, have a "+" next to them. Premium services, which have an hourly rate and a surcharge, have a "$" next to them on menus. Executive Option services, which have an hourly rate and sometimes a surcharge and are accessible only through an Executive Option membership, have an "E" or a "$E" next to them. GO EXECUTIVE to learn more about the Executive Option Service.

Here's a handy chart to help define CompuServe product categories:

Type of Service	Cost	Symbol	Example
Basic*	Flat monthly fee	none	CB Simulator
Extended	Hourly	+	IBMNEW +
Premium	Hourly/Surcharge	$	Quotes ($)
Executive	Hourly/Surcharge/Membership	$E	Disclosure ($E)

Note: When selecting a CompuServe service with the "+" symbol, hourly pricing begins with the next screen. When a surcharge is incurred for a portion of a product, the "$*" designation is used.

The Information Service You Won't Outgrow

When you become a member of CompuServe, you're connected to an international network of information, communication and entertainment. The following is a brief outline of many of the categories of services you'll find online.

Computer Support Forums

Among the most valuable services you'll enjoy on CompuServe are our hardware and software forums -- special meeting places for computer owners who want to use their hardware and software more effectively. In forums, you'll find over 300 hardware and software manufacturers ready to help with their products. Manufacturers like IBM(R), Apple(R), and Hewlett-Packard(R) to name just a few.

You'll also find software experts for everything from Adobe to WordPerfect(R). When you have a question, post a message in the appropriate forum. You might hear from the actual software developer ... within minutes.

And for immediate access to over 30,000 drivers, patches, utilities, template, and demos, try our forum libraries. Get advice and technical support for major shareware programs along with the latest upgrades and fixes. Scan our message boards for inside information. And download useful files.

Or, if you're interested in the computer trade magazines, you'll find the editorial staff of several international titles online. Follow up articles you've read, get product reviews, even suggest subjects for future editions.

CompuServe's computer forums give you the most out of your hardware and software investment.

Communications

CompuServe Mail turns your personal computer into a personal communications center. You can send and receive messages throughout the world and be assured of complete privacy. Or for a nominal charge, send mail to any MCI Mail(R), Telex(R), Internet, AT&T mail, AT&T Easy Link or fax address. And through our vast international network of local access numbers you can communicate with your home or office ... instantly.

In addition, you'll send and receive binary files as easily as text messages. And transmit complete word processing files at the touch of a few keys. There's even real time communications on our CB Simulator.

Any day, Any time, and any place, CompuServe will keep you in touch with the world.

Conquer the language barrier...

Reference

You might be amazed to discover the vast information available on CompuServe -- information including consumer, business, academic, social, scientific, legal, medical, and general reference.

You can access our electronic edition of Grolier's Encyclopedia. Or read the full text of over 700 professional journals and consumer magazines. Even look up medical information. The list is almost endless. Another advantage is the availability of online specialist newsletters and research papers, along with back issues of major international newspapers. CompuServe is a valuable tool to support everything from academic studies to critical business decisions.

Is time travel really possible?

Business and Financial

With CompuServe you'll take control of your investments by using some of the same electronic tools and information the experts use.

All with CompuServe, 24 hours a day, from anywhere in the world.

With CompuServe's financial services, you're minding your business with the best resources around.

Special Interest Forums

No matter what your interests, you're sure to find a CompuServe forum to match. In these electronic meeting places, people can chat about everything from model airplanes to tropical fish, depending on the nature of the group.

And that's just the beginning. Browse the message board to catch up on the latest discussions. Or join in on real-time conferences. Even explore the ever-expanding forum libraries.

Shed some light on a subject.

But if you'd rather play games, explore the Gamers' Forum. There are mystical games, combat games, parlor games, and quizzes. You'll find walk-throughs, help files, demos, even sneak previews. You'll talk with others who share your enthusiasm, speak to vendors, even challenge other players in modem-to-modem competition.

Why not come and join the fun?

techniques and utilities. Plus the combined experience of online experts who are happy to help.

Whether your job depends on being up-to-date or you're just an art aficionado, CompuServe keeps you in the know.

Conquer the language barrier...

When Dr. Nicholas Palmer of Ciba-Geigy in Switzerland needed an expert on fourth-generation computer languages and techniques, he left messages in the Focus User Forum and the IBM Europe Forum. Over a dozen well-qualified applicants contacted him and he eventually acquired the services of Rhode Island based consultant, Chip Darling. Not only did CompuServe help Chip get the job in Basel, it also enabled him to stay in touch with his family as they prepared to join him in his new country.

Is time travel really possible?

According to Sandra Smith it is. From her solar powered nineteenth century homestead in Washington, Sandra stays connected to the twentieth century information she needs to complete her doctorate in learning disabilities. Over the last four years, she has done extensive research on the medical aspects of dyslexia and fetal syndrome through PaperChase. She's even scanned abstracts translated from the Japanese language right from her log-cabin home! If you, like Sandra, want to be connected with the latest education research, try the Education Forum.

Shed some light on a subject.

Rob Landis, an astronomer with a major planetarium, was in the dark when a radio station asked for his expertise on an upcoming solar storm. "None of us at the planetarium are solar astronomers, nor do we observe the sun on a regular basis," says Landis. To solve the dilemma, he suggested they try CompuServe. They discovered the information they needed at lights speed on the Astronomy Forum, and were able to give the radio station an informative interview about what to expect during the storm. Not only does CompuServe help Rob shine during interviews, it keeps him up-to-date on all space-related events -- no matter how obscure.

Don't leave home without CompuServe.

When Eric Gottesman was contacted by a small Swiss company about the possibility of employment, he was interested, but concerned. After all, a foreign culture can be very different. Would he like it? To find out, he went online and visited the Travel Forum and CompuServe Mail. After quickly locating a wealth of information on Swiss culture and organizations, he had everything he needed to put his concerns to rest. Next time you need to get the lay of the land, why not try the CompuServe Travel Forum? It'll never lead you astray.

CB SimulatorService: CB

CompuServe's CB Simulator is an electronic conferencing program. It's a little like CB radio, except that you use a computer or terminal and, instead of speaking into a microphone, you type at a keyboard. Your reach isn't limited to a few miles, either. You can converse with other people all around the world. +

CB General BandService: CB-1

The General Band hosts 36 channels for communications of general interest subjects such as a welcome to CompuServe CB, poetry reading, hospitality suite and teen talk. If you are new to the world of CB, visit the Newcomer channel, Channel 2. There you will find CB helpers available between 6 p.m. and 2 a.m. Eastern Time (11 p.m. and 7 a.m. GMT). +

CB Adult BandsService: CB-2

Access the Adult Bands (in addition to CB-2 listed above, you can also use GO CB-3 to access the second Adult Band) and participate in any of the channels hosting adult-related discussions such as gender alternatives and alternative lifestyles. If you are new to CB on CompuServe, access the General Band Channel 2 for help and information. The adult bands are only for members 18 years and older. +

CB Club

Service: CBCLUB

Special pricing is available for members who use CB frequently. $

CB ForumService: CBFORUM

The CB Forum consists of a bulletin board and member and data libraries. There are sections for CB party information, teen talk, new CBers, tech talk, etc. +

CB Profiles

Service: CBPROFILES

Learn more about your friends on CB by checking the CB Profiles. Your CB Profile contains your handle (reserved handle if you are a CB Club member), User ID, age, city and state, the computer you are using, occupation and interests. Once your CB Profile is installed in the database, it is available for others to read whenever you are on CB. +

CB Society - Cupcake's Column

Service: CUPCAKE

Cupcake is our resident CB columnist. Here's where you can get the scoop on the latest party, who's engaged, who's new and what's happening. +

CompuServe ClassifiedsService: CLASSIFIEDS

Want to sell your boat, car or old computer? Are you looking for a new job, condo or something special? Then browse through CompuServe's Classified ads to find what you are seeking. Or post an ad to sell your unwanted treasures. CompuServe's Classifieds is just like the classified section in most newspapers, only national in scope. There is a surcharge for posting an ad but not for browsing.

CompuServe Mail

Service: MAIL

CompuServe Mail is CompuServe's electronic mail service. It gives you the opportunity to communicate not only with any CompuServe Information Service member, but also with most Internet (a group of university and government networks), MCIMail, AT&TMail 400, Western Union 400, Advantis, Uniscourse arCom, British Telecom Messaging Services, Nifty-Serve, Deutsche Bundespost, Infonet, Sprint Mail, NetWare MHS Local Area Network or cc:Mail/Local Area Network or stand-alone users. You can also communicate with persons around the world with a postal address, any Group 3 fax machine (must be available via direct dial) and any telex machine.

When you send faxes or telexes, you'll get notification on whether the message could be delivered and the time of delivery. You can also send all types of files through CompuServe Mail. Besides text messages, you can upload and send binary files, such as spreadsheets, graphics, worksheets and word processor documents in their native format to any CompuServe member. You also have the ability to download any of your mail messages and file them.

If you send a "receipt requested" message, you will find a notification in your mailbox when the message has been retrieved by the recipient. CompuServe Mail has an electronic address book to store the names and mailing addresses of the people to whom you send messages. For information on CompuServe Mail prices, GO MAILRATES. For help using CompuServe Mail, GO MAILHELP.

CompuServe Mail HubService: MHS

The CompuServe Mail Hub is a global message exchange facility which gives NetWare MHS users and cc:Mail users (either on Local Area Networks or on stand-alones) the ability to communicate with each other without having to dial each individual MHS site directly. The hub links people who use MHS e-mail packages such as Beyond, DaVinci, ExpressIt!, MailMAN, Notework, Powercore and Team as well as cc:Mail. The hub also allows the exchange of messages with any CompuServe member and with other connections such as Advantis (IBM Mail), AT&T Mail 400, Deutsche Bundepost, Fax, Internet, MCI Mail, Nifty-Serve, SprintMail and Western Union 400. CompuServe is continually reviewing connections and adding new mail services to expand your mailing network. To register your MHS network, access the CompuServe Mail Hub. $

CONGRESSgramsService: CONGRESS

If you want to send your opinions or views to members of the United States Congress or to the President or Vice President of the United States, use the CONGRESSgram feature of CompuServe Mail. Your letter is printed on paper, placed in an envelope and mailed to your recipient who usually receives it the next day. You can also use the Congressional database to look up information about any United States Congressman. Each listing includes committee assignments, hometown, party affiliation and phone number. $

The Convention Center

Service: CONVENTION

The Electronic Convention Center is a special meeting place to conduct live conferences of up to 300 people. You can view information on scheduled conferences and decide if you would like to attend. Information about each conference is displayed: general description, conference type, date and time, expected length and whether a reservation is required. A reservation, if needed, can be made at that time.

Forums (SIGs)

Service: FORUMS

Forums are places where people of similar interests can exchange information, participate in discussions in real-time conferences or share software programs. There are three types of forums:

Computer forums where you will find experts to solve problems or exchange technical ideas about computers;

Professional forums geared to specific professions like medicine or law;

General interest forums where people with similar interests or hobbies exchange ideas or information.

All forums have a similar structure and use the same commands. They are run by one or more Forum Administrators (SysOps - system operators) who are in charge of the forum and have some expertise in the subject matter of the forum. Most forums prefer that you use your full name, and they do not tolerate disruptive behavior. There are three main areas of a forum:

A message board containing hundreds of messages placed there by members.

A library containing text files and software programs, transcripts of conferences and essays.

A conference mode where members get together for real-time conferences. Conference mode is similar to the CB Simulator.

For more information on forums and how to use forum commands, see the Users Guide or stop by the Practice Forum.

Participate

Service: PARTI

Want to start your own ad hoc group discussion about a particular topic? Then GO PARTI to access Participate, a member-controlled messaging system where you lead the discussion and choose the participants. The command structure for Participate is unique, so be sure to read the available online help files. +

The Electronic Mall

Service: MALL

The Electronic Mall enables you to order products from over a hundred national retailers without searching for a parking space or waiting in check-out lines. Using your personal computer, you can order products, use your credit card to pay for them and have them shipped to your home or office. The Electronic Mall is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and there are no yearly membership fees or surcharges. The merchants are grouped in mall departments such as Gifts/Flowers, Books/Periodicals and PC Hardware/Software. Each merchant brings his best products and services to CompuServe members, often at substantial savings. Many offer free catalogs so that you can also order from the merchant using conventional mail or telephone. This Week's Mall News (GO EMN) announces new merchants and special sales and promotions. You can contact the mall merchants directly through their online store or through CompuServe Mail for catalogs or more product information.

Since new merchants frequently appear in the mall, be sure to check the online directories. GO MALLDIRECT will display the merchant directory alphabetically. GO INX will give you a product index list by category merchandise found in the mall. Should you ever have questions or problems with a specific merchant or suggestions on how to improve the mall, you can leave a message through Electronic Mall Feedback (GO MALLMANAGER). A response will be sent to you via CompuServe Mail. Join the Electronic Mall Elite (GO ELITE), the preferred mall shoppers club, and receive a connect-time usage credit, discounts from merchants and a monthly newsletter from the Mall Manager featuring mall special events.

It found its way to the temple located in the lowest levels of the catacombs, and it remains there to this day. Many of the creatures created in the laboratories escaped and have been living and multiplying ever since. You'll travel over many "acres" of land and encounter many computer-run characters during your adventure. CompuServe is very careful about the accuracy of its data. We perform automated reasonability tests and use independent sources to check any discrepancies. Many major investment banking firms regularly depend upon this data. Here are a few tips that you may find useful when using quotation data:

You will need to enter a ticker symbol. If you do not know it you can enter an asterisk followed by the beginning of the company name or you can look them up using the Issue/Symbol Lookup programs.

If you are at a prompt for company name or ticker symbol and you wish to exit the program, the navigational commands such as TOP or MENU will not work. Instead, you need to enter /T or /M so that the system knows you are not trying to enter a company name or ticker symbol.

For some products you will need to enter the date or the number of days, weeks or months for which you wish pricing information. Dates may be entered in several formats including mm/dd/yy (i.e. 10/15/92 or 2/7/93).

To check the current price of a stock anywhere on the service type QUOTES and a stock ticker symbol at any ! prompt. Separate the symbols with commas to price more than one issue.
