INTRODUCTION
Multimedia PC Marketing Council

Welcome to the third edition of the Multimedia PC Titles Catalog.

The Titles Catalog is published by the Multimedia PC Marketing Council, an organization which is dedicated to supporting the Multimedia PC computer platform for the benefit of end-users, software developers, and hardware manufacturers around the world.

The impetus for the the MPC platform was provided by the Multimedia PC Level 1 Specification, which was developed to serve as a "baseline" standard for the implementation of multimedia as an extension of the PC standard. Published in 1990 as the result of a collaboration of many industry companies, the MPC Level 1 Specification is accepted around the world as the standard for the hardware implementation of multimedia on the PC. This standard launched the traditional PC into the dynamic world of sound, graphics and animation. In May of 1993, the Multimedia PC Level 2, or MPC2 Specification was announced, providing an enhanced performance standard for higher levels of multimedia functionality.

Look for these logos when choosing Multimedia PC software and hardware.

The Multimedia PC certification mark was established by the Council to encourage the worldwide use of the standard Multimedia PC computing platform. The mark is licensed by over 130 hardware and software vendors to certify that products meet or exceed the MPC Specifications. End-users can be assured that software bearing the Multimedia PC mark is designed to work on computer systems or upgrade kits that meet the MPC Specifications.

We have entered into an exciting new era of personal computing-- one that fully involves your senses as you experience the dynamic world of multimedia information. In the pages that follow you'll discover interactive applications that inspire, educate, inform and entertain. More than any other information source, Multimedia PC applications let you become an active participant in the world around you.

MULTIMEDIA PC COMPUTING
What You Need To Know

Multimedia PC computing is not just a vision for the future. Its here today. Multimedia computing is simple in concept: the integration of sound, animation, photo-quality images and video with text and graphics. This simple idea will have a remarkable impact on the way people use computers.

The Multimedia PC Marketing Council has developed a standard multimedia computer specification: the Multimedia PC. Based on the standard desktop PC already used by millions, the Multimedia PC provides users with an affordable approach to multimedia computing that preserves their investments in PC software. The Multimedia PC also takes advantage of the Microsoft®WindowsTM operating system, making Multimedia PC software easy to access and integrate with other software applications on your PC.

The list of available or announced Multimedia PC software products already includes 230 titles and applications from 95 software companies. You can recognize these products by the MPC logo above. Multimedia PC titles already include whole reference libraries brought to life with photos, drawings, animations, video and sound; language-instruction titles with spoken lessons and pronunciations; interactive childrens titles with engaging animations, and sounds; and tools to help you build your own multimedia creations. Multimedia functionality is also migrating into business application programs, bringing multimedia capabilities to word processors, spreadsheets, and other popular productivity software. The Multimedia PC brings CD-ROM into the mainstream of personal computing and greatly expands the types of software products available for your PC.

What is a Multimedia PC?

A Multimedia PC consists of five basic components: a PC, a CD-ROM drive, an audio board, Microsoft

Windows 3.1 or Windows 3.0 with Multimedia Extensions 1.0, and a set of speakers or headphones for audio output.

The minimum PC configuration for a Multimedia PC is a machine with a 386SX processor and 2 megabytes of RAM, a 30 megabyte hard disk, and a VGA or VGA+ display (virtually all Multimedia PCs produced today exceed these minimum specifications). To this base a CD-ROM drive has been added, to give the Multimedia PC its tremendous information retrieval capabilities. The addition of an audio board and speakers or headphones gives the Multimedia PC its ability to play and manipulate speech, music, and other sounds.

High performance Multimedia PCs which meet or exceed the following specifications are known as Level 2 MPCs: 486SX processor, 4 megabytes of RAM, 160 megabyte hard disk, double-speed CD-ROM drive, and the capability of displaying 65,536 colors at 640 X 480 resolution.

A Multimedia PC which meets some but not all of the Level 2 specifications is considered an MPC Level 1 computer.

How do I get a Multimedia PC?
You may purchase a Multimedia PC as a pre-configured system or, if your current PC meets the system requirements as described in the MPC Specifications, you can easily upgrade to a MPC Level 1 or Level 2 Multimedia PC with the purchase of an upgrade kit. In addition to upgrading your current machine, an upgrade kit may be used to configure a new system as an MPC.

Prices for full MPC systems start at under $1,500 and upgrade kits are available starting under $500. For information regarding companies shipping Level 1 and Level 2 certified MPC systems and upgrade kits, contact the Multimedia PC Marketing Council.

What is the meaning of the MPC logo on hardware?
The distinctive MPC or MPC2 logos certify compliance with the corresponding MPC Specification. Products bearing these marks have passed tests to ensure that they meet the specification requirements. Compliance with the specifications guarantees compatibility with multimedia PC software.

What are the benefits of Level 2 MPCs compared with Level 1?
Most applications will run faster on the enhanced MPC2 platform. Software-based video will perform better on Level 2 Multimedia PCs. Photo CD applications, not supported on base Level 1 MPCs, will also perform well on Level 2 machines.

Although Level 2 MPCs provide better overall performance, Level 1 MPCs will continue as viable multimedia machines well into the future. (Most of the Level 1 MPC's being sold today meet a number of the Level 2 requirements).

Can I install the Multimedia PC upgrade kit myself?
Yes, upgrade kits are designed for installation by the user. Upgrade installation requires opening your PC and inserting an audio board into one of the PCs expansion slots, as well as installing an internal, external, or portable CD-ROM drive and loading the necessary system software.

How many expansion slots does a Multimedia PC upgrade kit require?
A Multimedia PC upgrade kit requires one or two slots, depending on the kit manufacturer and whether you select an internal or external CD-ROM drive. A number of upgrade kits with external CD-ROM drives require two expansion slots in your computer. Some upgrade kits offer an integrated audio board and internal CD-ROM drive that occupy only one expansion slot.

I already own a CD-ROM drive can I use it with a Multimedia PC?
Yes, some upgrade kit manufacturers offer special packages that allow you to upgrade to a Multimedia PC without buying a new CD-ROM drive. However, CD-ROM drives come in a variety of performance levels, not all of which are sufficient for a Multimedia PC. To be fully compatible with the Multimedia PC standard, the drive must have a transfer rate of at least 150 kB/second and a maximum seek time of 1 second, and utilize no more than forty percent of the computers CPU processing power (check the Specifications for Level 2 requirements). This information should be included in the technical specifications for your drive. If it is not, check with your drives manufacturer. In addition, you need to be sure that you are using Microsoft MS-DOS®CD-ROM Extensions (MSCDEX) version 2.2 or later and an updated device driver for your CD-ROM drive. The manufacturer of your CD-ROM drive can provide you with version 2.2 of MSCDEX and an appropriate driver.

I already have an audio board in my computer can I use it with my Multimedia PC?
Some upgrade kit manufacturers offer special upgrade packages that allow you to use your current audio board. However, many popular audio boards are not fully Multimedia PC compatible. Multimedia PC audio compliance for digitized sound is 8 bit samples at an 11 kHz input sampling rate and 8 bit samples at a 22 kHz output sampling rate (check the Specifications for Level 2 requirements). Your audio board also requires a software driver from the audio board supplier to communicate with Windows. You can obtain this driver from your audio board manufacturer. The Multimedia PC also has audio mixing capabilities that enable it to output a variety of audio sources through a single output jack. Most older audio boards do not have this mixing capability but can be enhanced with external audio mixers that can be purchased separately. Check with your audio board manufacturer for more information.

How well will a pieced-together Multimedia PC work?
It might work very well. However, to be absolutely certain that your system will be one hundred percent compatible with all Multimedia PC software, look for PCs and upgrade kits that bear the MPC logo.

Will ordinary speakers or headphones work with my Multimedia PC?
Yes, but you will need a power source to drive the speakers. This can be a standard stereo amplifier (with an "audio-in" jack) or self-powered speakers, which can be plugged directly into the exposed audio-card socket in the back of your Multimedia PC. Self-powered mini speakers, such as those used with personal stereos, are a popular alternative. Headphones can be plugged directly into the audio card socket and do not require any external power source.

MINIMUM MULTIMEDIA PC LEVEL 1 SYSTEM REQUIREMENTS

Hardware:
386SX or higher processor.
2 MB RAM.
30 MB hard disk.
VGA or VGA+ display.
Two button mouse.
101 key keyboard.

CD-ROM drive:
> CD-DA outputs, sustained 150 kB/sec transfer rate without consuming more than 40 percent of >> CPU bandwidth in the process.
> Average seek time of 1 second or less.
> MSCDEX 2.2 driver or equivalent that implements the extended audio APIs.
> Subchannel Q support (P, R-W optional).

Audio board:
> 8-bit DAC, Linear PCM sampling, 22.05 and 11.025 kHz rate, DMA/FIFO with interrupt.
> 8-bit ADC, Linear PCM sampling, 11.025 kHz rate, microphone level input.
> Music synthesizer.
> On-board analog audio mixing capabilities.

Serial port, parallel port.
MIDI I/O port.
Joystick port.
Headphones or speakers connected to your computer system.

System Software:
Binary compatibility with Windows 3.0 plus Multimedia Extensions or Windows 3.1.

CD-ROM/ Sound Card Audio Cable Standard for MPC Components:
The following cable standards apply only to MPC components (CD-ROM drives or sound cards sold seperately). Full systems and upgrade kits are not required to observe the following specification:

A Multimedia PC CD-ROM drive component must include a minimun 24 inch cable to connect the drive's analog audio output connector to an MPC sound card's analog audio input connector. The cable's open sound card connector must be a female 4 pin Molex 70066-G, 70400-G, or 70430-G connector with 2.54 mm pitch, or the equivalent, with the following pin assignments: pin 1- left signal, pin 2- ground, pin 3- ground, pin 4- right signal.

A Multimedia PC sound card component must be capable of mating with the CD-ROM audio cable by having a 2.54 mm pitch Molex 70553 male connector on the card (or the equivalent), or by including a short patch cable. The patch cable must plug into the non-standard sound card connector and have an open male connector (Molex 70107-A, or the equivalent) for attaching to the CD-ROM cable female connector. The pin assignments on the sound card connectors must be complementary to the CD-ROM audio cable connectors.

MINIMUM MULTIMEDIA PC LEVEL 2 SYSTEM REQUIREMENTS

Hardware:
25 MH 486SX or compatible microprocessor.
4 megabytes of RAM (8 megabytes recommended).
3.5" Floppy drive.
Hard drive (160 MB minimum).
Video display resolution of at least 640x480 with 65,536 (64K) colors.
Two button mouse.
101 key Keyboard (or functional equivalent).

CD-ROM Drive:

    Doublespeed with CD-DA outputs (Capable of sustained 300 KB/sec transfer rate).

    No more than 40% of the CPU bandwidth may be consumed when maintaining a sustained transfer rate of 150 KB/sec.

    Average seek time of 400 milliseconds or less.

    10,000 hours MTBF.

    CD-ROM XA ready (mode 1 capable, mode 2 form 1 capable, mode 2 form 2 capable).

    Multisession capable.

    MSCDEX 2.2 driver or equivalent that implements the extended audio APIs.

    Subchannel Q support (P, R-W optional).

Audio board:

    16-bit DAC, Linear PCM sampling, 44.1, 22.05, and 11.025 kHz rate, DMA/FIFO buffered transfer capability.

    16 bit ADC, Linear PCM sampling, 44.1, 22.05, and 11.025 kHz rate, DMA/FIFO buffered transfer capability; microphone input.

    Music synthesizer.

    On-board analog audio mixing capabilities.

    CD-ROM XA audio capability is recommended.

    Support for the IMA adopted ADPCM software algorithm is recommended.

Serial port.
Parallel port.
MIDI I/O port.
Joystick port.
Headphones or speakers connected to your computer system.

System Software:
Binary compatibility with Windows 3.0 plus Multimedia Extensions or Windows 3.1.

CD-ROM/ Sound Card Audio Cable Standard for MPC Components:
Same cable standard as Level 1 (full systems and upgrade kits are not required to observe this specification.)

GUIDELINES FOR SYNTHESIZER IMPLEMENTATION

MULTIMEDIA PC SPECIFICATION
LEVEL 1 AND LEVEL 2

Microsoft® WindowsTM graphical environment with Multimedia Extensions (referred to hereafter as "Windows with Multimedia") defines a MIDI file authoring standard, and supports device independent playback of MIDI files authored to the standard. To enable this, Multimedia PC synthesizers need to follow the guidelines below.

Windows with Multimedia includes a user configurable MIDI mapper which can change MIDI channel and patch numbers in a MIDI data stream, so synthesizers need not conform to the specific MIDI channel assignments and patch numbers defined below. However, if the synthesizer does not conform, a MIDI map file should be provided to ease end-user configuration of a Multimedia PC with a specific synthesizer. Microsoft also recommends that synthesizers created for the Multimedia PC (i.e. using audio boards) provide General MIDI Mode (GMM). GMM is a standard patch and channel map defined by the MIDI Manufacturers Association, and fully compatible with the MIDI implementation for Windows with Multimedia.

Base Multitimbral versus Extended Multitimbral:
Some Multimedia PC synthesizers can play back only a few timbres (also called instruments or patches) simultaneously at any instant in time. Others have greater capacity for playing back multiple timbres at once. To cover the wide range of capability, two synthesizer types are defined: Base Multitimbral and Extended Multitimbral. Each type is assigned a subset of the 16 MIDI channels.

Base Multitimbral specification: MIDI Channels 13-16: Base Multitimbral synthesizers must be able to play 3 melodic timbres (channels 13-15) and 2 percussive timbres (channel 16) simultaneously. Base Multitimbral synthesizers must also be able to play 6 melodic notes and 2 percussive notes simultaneously. The melodic and percussive notes may be allocated across the melodic and percussive instruments, respectively, in any combination. For example, a Base Multitimbral synthesizer could play three flute notes, two harpsichord notes, one cello note, and two base drum "notes" all at once. Base Multitimbral Synthesizers may exceed these minimum capacities, but MIDI files will not take advantage of additional capacity.

Extended Multitimbral specification: MIDI Channels 1-10. The capability of an Extended Multitimbral Synthesizer must exceed the base specification, but by how much is not specified. Instead, these synthesizers should have capabilities as close as possible to the following goals: Extended Multitimbral synthesizers should be able to play 9 melodic timbres (channels 1-9) and 8 percussive timbres (channel 10) simultaneously. Extended Multitimbral synthesizers should also be able to play 16 melodic notes and 16 percussive notes simultaneously. The melodic and percussive notes may be allocated across the melodic and percussive instruments, respectively, in any combination. Extended Multitimbral Synthesizers may exceed these capabilities, but MIDI files will not take advantage of additional capacity.

 See the section "Authoring Standard" below for information on how MIDI files take advantage of these two Synthesizer definitions.

Note and Timbre Stealing:
When a synthesizer encounters a note beyond its polyphony limit (e.g., a 15th melodic note for an Extended Multitimbral synthesizer only capable playing 14 melodic notes at once) it should "steal" the oldest melodic note playing in order to play the new note. Melodic notes should not steal percussive notes and percussive notes should no steal melodic notes.

The melodic MIDI channels for each synthesizer type are in priority order where the lower channels are higher priority. When a synthesizer encounters a melodic timbre beyond its multitimbral limit (e.g. a 9th melodic timbre for an Extended Multitimbral synthesizer only capable playing 8 melodic timbres at once) it should drop the timbre on the highest melodic MIDI channel; channel 9 in this case.

Instrument Loading:
MIDI sequencers under Windows with Multimedia will inform the synthesizer's driver what patches will be used before it begins playback of a MIDI file, using the midiOutCachePatches() API. For synthesizers that load instrument-patches into PC or board RAM, this permits the driver to preload the instrument-patches that will be needed. Drivers for synthesizers that load patches into board RAM of very limited capacity can buffer additional patches in PC RAM, so they may be loaded at interrupt time when needed.

Standard Instruments:
The table below lists the standard instruments synthesizers should implement. In cases where it is not feasible to implement all instruments, at least one instrument from each group should be implemented.

Authoring Standard:
MIDI authors are required to provide two versions of every MIDI composition. Both versions are stored in the same MIDI file. Channels 1-10 hold the version written for Extended Multitimbral synthesizers. Channels 13-16 hold the version written for the Base Multitimbral synthesizer. MIDI authors put the most important melodic timbres in lower melodic MIDI channels, so they decide which timbres will be dropped if the synthesizer's multitimbral capacity is exceeded.

The additional effort of authoring for two synthesizer types has an important benefit for the MIDI author. Their files can be played back on a wide variety of Multimedia PC synthesizers without modification.

PURPOSE OF THE MULTIMEDIA PC MARKETING COUNCIL

. Development and advancement of the Multimedia PC Specification, which extends the PC standard to include multimedia functionality.

. Creation of strong awareness for the Multimedia PC certification mark, which communicates that hardware and software products meet the Multimedia PC Specification and are compatible with each other.

. Protection and administration of the certification mark to preserve its value and significance.

. Support of Multimedia PC software and hardware certification mark licensees through various marketing programs.

. Advancement of the Multimedia PC platform for the benefit of end-users, software developers, and hardware manufacturers around the world.

MULTIMEDIA PC SPECIFICATION

By the end of the 1980s, multimedia hardware technology for the PC was available and quickly becoming affordable. A legitimate multimedia market, however, was very slow to take shape. With no assurance their products would work on the various proprietary hardware platforms, software developers had little incentive to produce multimedia titles. Multimedia technology lacked a critical element necessary to attract significant software investment: standardization.

The MPC Specification was developed to serve as a "baseline" standard for the implementation of multimedia as an extension of the PC standard. Published in 1990 as the result of a collaboration of many industry companies, the MPC Specification has been accepted around the world as the standard for the hardware implementation of multimedia on the PC. Because the MPC standard defines a multimedia platform that software companies can rely on, multimedia software development has grown quickly over the past several years.

In May 1993, the Council published the MPC Level 2 Specification to establish a performance standard for enhanced multimedia computing. The new specification is a backwardly compatible superset of the original MPC Specification, which remains in full effect and will continue to serve the needs of the market segment that does not require advanced multimedia capabilities.

One important benefit of the Level 2 Specification is that software developers will produce advanced multimedia titles more quickly with the knowledge that specific hardware capabilities are being adopted by the growing installed base. It will be easier to predict the growth of the installed based with these features and estimate the market size.

In January 1994, the Council extended the MPC certification program to include "stand-alone" CD-ROM drives and sound cards. To ensure MPC certified CD-ROM drives and sound cards work together the Council defined a standard audio cable configuration to be included with each licensed component. The appearance of the MPC mark on CD-ROM drives and sound cards guarantees that these components meet or exceed the MPC Specifications. In conjunction with the new audio cable standard, MPC certification also simplifies the connection of CD-ROM drives and sound cards that are purchased separately.

By January of 1994, MPC products from more than 170 licensed companies around the world were experiencing explosive growth and clearly moving into the PC mainstream.

MULTIMEDIA PC CERTIFICATION MARK: BACKGROUND

The Multimedia PC Marketing Council was established to promote, support and develop the MPC Specification. The Multimedia PC mark, originally implemented as a trademark, was established by the Council to encourage the worldwide use of the standard Multimedia PC computing platform. End-users can be assured that software bearing the Multimedia PC mark is designed to work on a system, upgrade kit, CD-ROM drive, or sound card that meets the MPC Specification. By establishing a standard platform, and by delivering plug and play simplicity for the consumer, the Council encourages the widespread use of multimedia applications and hardware.

In May 1993, along with the publication of the Level 2 Specification, the Council announced that full systems and upgrade kits meeting the new specification would be permitted to bear the derivative MPC Level 2 mark. The Council announced as well that the MPC trademarks would be converted to certification marks, with a requirement that hardware be required to pass test suites provided by the Council to verify compliance with the specifications.

In January 1994, the Council extended the use of the MPC Levels 1 and 2 certification marks to individual CD-ROM drives and sound cards.

Value of the Multimedia PC Certification Mark

- Assures Specification Compliance-- As a certification "stamp of approval," backed by the requirement that hardware must pass test suites provided by the Council, the mark provides customers with the highest level of confidence that products comply with the MPC Specifications.
- Compatibility and simplicity-- The certification mark ensures interoperability among hardware and software products.
- High visibility-- The Council's multimillion dollar effort along with broad support among hardware and software vendors delivers high visibility for the mark in reseller channels, advertisements and editorial coverage.
- Delivers customers-- End-users appreciate the compatibility value of the mark and the assurance that these products conform to the MPC Specification.
- Reseller support-- The certification mark provides an edge in competition for shelf space with unlicensed hardware and software products.
- Integrity of the mark- Hardware products must pass certification tests provided by the Council prior to bearing the mark. Once introduced, products are subject to further testing by the Council or its independent agent; the license will be withdrawn from products which fail these tests.

Marketing Benefits of Multimedia PC Certification Mark Licensing

- Titles catalog-- The first two editions of the catalog showcased a total of 160 MPC titles and were distributed free to over 50,000 end-users. The third edition of the catalog, available in October of 1993, was published for the first time in a multimedia version on CD-ROM as well as in the printed format. The latest edition describes 140 new titles and is expected to reach over 1 million consumers. The catalog is provided to retailers, distributors, CD-ROM "magazine" publishers, on-line services and end-users by the Council and is bundled by many licensed manufacturers with their MPC hardware. For a small fee, all licensed MPC software titles are eligible to participate.
- Information service-- Currently handling up to 100 requests for information a day, the Council provides information about the Multimedia PC platform and referrals for licensed hardware and software products.
- Press and public relations-- The Council provides an ongoing program to bring beneficial attention to multimedia and the Multimedia PC.
- ISV support-- The entire platform benefits from the Council's efforts in support of the ISV (independent software vendor) community, which include marketing support and aid in reaching proper reseller channels and contacts.
- Advertising discounts-- The U.S. magazines Multimedia World and New Media each offer advertisers a 10% discount in their marketplace or showcase sections when the MPC certification mark is prominently displayed.

SOFTWARE LICENSING REQUIREMENTS

- The software must run on the base platform as defined by the Multimedia PC hardware specification.
- The software must utilize the Windows 3.0 plus Multimedia Extensions version 1.0 API (included in Windows 3.1) or equivalent binary compatible APIs.
- The software must use at least one multimedia element.

• An administrative fee of $500.00 is charged for licensing each software product (payment to accompany license registration); for a full software licensing kit call Jim Hassert at (202) 331-0494 extension 340.

HARDWARE LICENSING REQUIREMENTS
The Level 1 and 2 certification marks may be licensed for full systems, upgrade kits, CD-ROM drives and sound cards that meet the applicable MPC Specification and complete the certification process.

Perennial Hardware License Schedule (Option A)
• Provides for the perpetual use of the Level 1 and/or Level 2 marks by the licensing company on the specified hardware elements
• Perennial licensees are eligible to have a representative on the technical advisory sub-committee of the Council

The license fee schedule is as follows:

• Full system vendors- $70,000 payable in three equal yearly installments
(includes licenses for full systems, upgrade kits, CD-ROM drives and sound cards)
• International vendors- $35,000 payable in two equal yearly installments
(includes licenses for full systems, upgrade kits, CD-ROM drives and sound cards sold outside of North America)
• Upgrade kit/ Component vendors- $35,000 payable in two equal yearly installments
(includes upgrade kit, CD-ROM drive and sound card licenses, may convert to full system vendor license at any time by paying differential)

Per-Unit Hardware License Schedule (Option B)
Per-unit licenses are issued for the specific class of product listed below. The royalty is the same for use of either the Level 1 or Level 2 mark.
> Full systems- $1.00 royalty per unit
> Upgrade kits - $.50 royalty per unit
> CD-ROM drives- $.35 royalty per unit
> Sound cards- $.25 royalty per unit

For all Per-unit licensees there is a prepayment requirement based on the revenues of the prospective licensee (Tier I, II) as described below. The prepayment is an advance payment of royalties against the initial shipments of licensed units. Additional per-unit license royalties are due quarterly based on unit shipments .
> Tier I   Companies with total annual revenues over $25 million
> Tier II   Companies with total annual revenues under $25 million

Tier	Full System	Upgrade Kit/ Components
I	$10,000	$7,500
II	$5,000	$3,750

• Eighty percent of paid per-unit royalties can be applied at any time as credit towards a perennial license.
• When multiple per-unit product categories are licensed, the second or subsequent prepayment fee is adjusted to fifty percent of the above rate.
• Fifty percent of the prepayment amount is due upon signing the license agreement. The remaining fifty percent is due 60 days from the date of signing the license agreement.

MULTIMEDIA PC MARKETING COUNCIL
• The Council is a not-for-profit corporation by virtue of the provision in its bylaws which stipulates that no profit can be returned to shareholders.
• All revenues generated from license and shareholder fees are used to create awareness and value for the Multimedia PC Specification and marks, and to support and promote the Multimedia PC platform for the benefit of licensees and end-users around the world.

- Current shareholders in the Multimedia PC Council include CompuAdd, Creative Labs, ING. C. OLIVETTI & C., Fujitsu, IBM PC Company, Media Vision, Microsoft, NCR/AT&T, NEC Technologies, Philips Consumer Electronics, Tandy Corp., Video Seven and Zenith Data Systems.
- The Board of Directors of the Council approves the operating and marketing budgets in accordance with the Council's Bylaws

Council shareholders receive one voting share in the Multimedia PC Marketing Council. The Board of Directors is comprised of one representative of each shareholder of the Council. The Board of Directors is responsible for the timing, content and implementation of any future changes in the Multimedia PC Specification, determination and application of the licensing program for the Multimedia PC certification marks, and the allocation of Council resources used in supporting and promoting the Multimedia PC certification marks and platform.

Industry companies are eligible to become shareholders in the Multimedia PC Marketing Council for a consideration of $100,000. The $100,000 consideration can be paid in two equal installments, the first due within 30 days, the second due one year later. No licensing rights to the Multimedia PC certification mark are included with shareholder status.

The Multimedia PC logos are certification marks owned by the Multimedia PC Marketing Council, Inc.; Microsoft and Microsoft Windows are trademarks owned by Microsoft.

The following chart compares key requirements and recommendations of the Multimedia PC Level 1 and Level 2 Specifications. Complete information about the specifications is available from the Multimedia PC Marketing Council.

The New Kid on the Block, the first Brøderbund Living Book™of poetry, is based on hilarious poems by the award-winning author Jack Prelutsky. Children 6 to 12 select words or lines and watch with delight while animated cartoons act out the selections, accompanied by sound effects, music and narration (Prelutsky himself reads four poems).

Reading skills grow through word recognition. Since the children are in control, they can proceed at their own pace. Words, phrases, and lines can be highlighted individually; the computer then reads them aloud and animations convey their meaning. The program also includes an illustrated book containing all poems in the program.

Features:

- 17 of Jack Prelutsky's best poems read and fully animated.

- Children spend hours memorizing the poems   learning hundreds of words in the process.

- Children have poems read all the way through or stop on each verse to explore the picture by clicking on words.

- Simple interface for young children ages 6-12.

- Includes original story book.

The Tortoise and the Hare, a Brøderbund Living Book™, is based on a 2,500-year-old fable by the legendary Greek writer Aesop. This interactive, animated storybook includes dozens of hilarious new twists, with lively animations, music, sound effects, narration, and talking characters. So the story is fresh, enchanting, and full of surprises!

Clicking on various parts of the screen, children 3 to 8 explore words as well as pictures. Since the children are in control, they can replay a favorite part, go back or skip ahead as they proceed at their own pace. With this whole-language approach, they soon learn to recognize words, letters and complete sentences.

Features:

● Dozens of "hot spots" start clever, delightful animations.

● Children are empowered to explore the screen at their own pace.

● Talking characters have personality: Meet Simon, who narrates and interacts with the story; the slow, clever tortoise; and the fast, excitable hare.

● Read-only and interactive modes are available.

● Originally developed storybook is included.

Peripheral Devices Supported:

● Sound Blaster™or compatible, Sound Blaster Pro™.

Be on top of it all with Multicom's new infotainment (information and entertainment) title about satellite observation of the earth. Terra is a double feature. In the first CD, the Satellite Control System allows the user to learn about the operational satellite program; or choose the System Functions to watch and observe. Visualize the beauty from the rise of the earth, watch hurricane "Andrew" wield its power over Florida, and see the dark clouds hovering, once again, over Kuwait.

The second CD gives insight into the "life of a planet." An image is used to represent each day, from the last five years. The Video Retrieval System, within seconds and minutes, shows the whole database of five years with the simple click of a button. Once the desired day is picked, a range of specific image processing functions (zoom, palette operations, grey scale ranging) can be performed. These functions help to understand meteorological basics and are fun to apply!

The images themselves pose a challenge for creative image processing, and are as original as the satellite "sees" it, originating from the archives of the ESA (European Space Agency).

The dual CD comes in triple language version (English, French, German).

Based on the stories of children's author Tomie dePaola, Big Anthony's Mixed-Up Magic is an enchanting adventure that takes place in the southern Italian kingdom of Calabria.
The narrative reveals the tale of Strega Nona, the revered town doctor who can cure anything from warts to headaches, and her bumbling but goodhearted assistant, Big Anthony. When Strega Nona's position in the community is threatened by neighboring competition, Big Anthony saves the day in his own endearingly haphazard way.

The thrill of Big Anthony's Mixed-Up Magic is enhanced by being able to participate in the action and avenues of all the characters. We join Big Anthony as he embarks on his escapades; helping him look for lost letters, operate high tech equipment, solve puzzles, learn magic tricks and explore enchanted groves. In Big Anthony's Mixed-Up Magic, entertainment and storytelling find a perfect union for the child at heart.

Phone: 603-883-0220
Fax: 603-883-5582
800#:   800-289-2884

List Price: $4,995.00

IconAuthor is an intuitive, comprehensive multimedia authoring tool, ideally suited for developing interactive multimedia commercial titles on the MPC under Windows™.
Its powerful, intuitive "visual programming" environment is unrivaled for building lively titles that include high-level text, graphics, animation, CD-quality audio, and full-motion video all without scripting. Title developers simply choose from a library of icons to build the structure of an application, then add content through dialog boxes.

IconAuthor separates an application's content (i.e., the text files, graphic files, animation, video, and audio segments) from its structure, supporting a team development approach that is required for rapid, cross-platform title creation. This separation enhances simultaneous development, version control, quality assurance, maintenance, consistency, and the development of title series. Developers can reuse the original structure and simply modify content when creating additional titles in a series, thereby significantly reducing development time.

Features:

• More than one application can be opened at the same time with full abilities to copy and paste between them.

• Supports Rich Text Format (RTF) files allowing you to import text from leading word processing applications; also supports ASCII files.

• Supports multiple active objects in one screen, and multiple actions for each object.
