Action Dome

by Slovis Software

Go on an eating frenzy! Guide Glerp, an alien blob, to bowls of sugar worms. Eat all the bowls and bonus icons (eggs, coins, etc.) to complete each level. Avoid the other alien creatures that are trying to eat you! As you progress through the levels, you're bound to get a bit confused with the addition of creatures and objects — some will help you and some will hurt you. Some even have a question mark on them so you don't know if they are good or bad. There are 40 levels with great color and sound.

Bolo

by Stuart Cherhire

Declare war on your friend's computer with this network tank game. Not only can you battle head to head, you can also build buildings, bridges and roads — even plant mine fields — to obstruct your opponent. Drive your tank around this maze of forests, swamps, rivers, buildings and roads. Up to 16 players can join in via several computer links, including Local Talk and EtherNet. Great color and sound!

NOTE: It's best to go through the tutorial first — it explains everything in great detail.

BoulderDash

by Georges Lobry

In BoulderDash, you must guide Rockford (no, not the 70s TV detective!) through multiple maze-like levels. Gather the jewels and squash your enemies with boulders — but don't get squashed yourself! There are 20 different levels, each offering unique challenges, guaranteeing hours of entertainment.

Hot Tip: Timing and technique are the keys. Entice an enemy into following you, then dig under a rock and move out of the way! Warning: rock piles behave in strange ways!

Boxcars Casino

by Jeff T. Rodeo

Place your bets and roll them bones! Boxcars Casino features craps, poker, slots and much more! You can even play Keno while you play other games. You'll love the fantastic color graphics and realistic game play.

NOTE: As in real life, you must go to the bank and get some money before you can gamble.

Hot Tip: Read the Boxcars Manual for excellent gaming tips and clear, concise instructions.

Citadel of the Dead

by RJ Best

Enter a world of fantasy in this medieval role-playing game. Create a character, buy weapons and supplies and fight evil creatures. You can play with several different people with their own characters or play solo with several characters of your own. There are four different character types — warriors, priests, elves and gnomes. Choose from more than 75 different weapons, equipment and accessories to buy and find in your adventures — and battle against more than 100 different creatures. Dozens of magic and clerical spells add an extra adventure. Exciting 256-color graphics and sound effects make this a fascinating game!

Classic Daleks

by Ingemar Ragnemalm

From the original creator of Daleks, here's an update for nostalgic game players. This time it's in color!

Survive by causing the robots (Daleks) to crash into each other and turn to dust! Daleks aren't particularly smart, so it's easy to get them to collide. Unfortunately, they become more and more numerous, until ... well, you'll just have to find out for yourself!

Hot Tip: Learn to use the teleporter and sonic screwdriver wisely!

Cyber Fighters

by Brett Crain

Get two great games in one! Choose from several fighters, each with different skills and strengths. Compete head to head against another fighter — either the computer or another player — or run through a maze fighting several opponents. Under Set Up, the corresponding key for Fight starts the head to head competition and the Stop key starts the maze game. There are awesome three-dimensional graphics in this colorful game! The sound and music add a great touch.

Death Castle

by Jared Buttlers

You're going to love the color graphics and smooth game play in this entertaining role playing game. You are the intrepid explorer Sir Gewain, whose destiny is to explore Death Castle. You will encounter an assortment of evildoers in the multiple floors of the castle, including a Death Head and a vile green gell! Conquer the baddies and scrolls, potions and silver will be your reward!

NOTE: This game runs on Power Macs only!

Hearts Deluxe v4.0

by freeVerse

If you like Hearts, you'll love the latest update to Hearts Deluxe. The latest version supports many different rules which characterize regional variations of the game. In addition, Hearts Deluxe supports Speech Recognition if you have Plain Talk installed on your Mac (it's available from Apple).

Hot Tip: The manual is a definite must-read, especially the strategy guide section!

Jumble!

by Laz Ware

Create as many words as possible in a limited time. Select either regular Jumble with 20 letters or Mega Jumble with 25 letters. Points are given for each complete word. The interface is simple and clean.

MacBrickout v3.1

by Leap Frog Software

A great version of Breakout for the Mac-intosh! Using your paddle, bounce a ball against a multi-level layer of bricks, destroying a brick with each hit. Wipe out all bricks and move to the next board. Watch for power-ups – they'll either hurt or help you. You'll enjoy this colorful game!

Pyromania v3.0

by Digital Horizon

Incinerate your enemy! Try to find the exit in this multi-level maze game. Break through walls and obstacles and fight an array of creatures by dropping bombs. Collect the bonus icons to freeze the enemy, move faster or reveal the exit. Finish with a lot of points to be listed on the high score list. Great colors and graphics make this fast-paced game hot!
