The Future...

A future upgrade will hopefully contain a list of sounds the Macintosh makes at startup when something bad happens (anyone know what these are?   Send me e-mail at the address below!!!).   DocMaker v4.0.2 now supports built-in sounds and Quicktime Movie support, so there may be some new interesting features included, as well as just the basic application for those of us with slow modems and small hard drives.

Also included will definitly be any new Macintosh virus or trojan horse descriptions I can come up with, along with whatever else I find out there that interests me.

I'm also looking for a source of the PowerMac sytem error ID codes.   These are the new PowerPC RISC machines Apple has started selling starting as of March '94.   If anyone has access to, or knows where I can get them please e-mail, I'd be most thankfull (see below for how to contact me!).

Suggestions

If anyone has any ideas or suggestions for this thing, or finds that I said/typed something totally wrong send me a short e-mail message via internet (you should receive a response in about a week) and I'll mention you in upcoming releases (as well as correct the problem).   Of course, if you don't want to be mentioned, just say so, no problem.   Also, contact me if you would like to obtain the newest version of Chiron.

One more thing before I leave, no matter how frustrating the Mac can seem at times remember it could be much worse.   You could be using an IBM!   If you ever feel like you might want to get an IBM compatible, e-mail me immediatly with your reason why and I'll set you straight.   The Macintosh is the best computer ever made, no matter what anyone says.

How to Contact Me

robert.cummings@news.ci.net

Please leave what state your from, I'm curious to see where this has gone, thanks!

Or contact me on any of the Boston area boards I'm on, I can usually be found under the handle 'B-Bert'.

See 'ya out there on the Electronic Frontier!

--Robert Cummings

(aka: B-Bert)