

Out of sight! You're actually reading the read me file! You must really know time. Here's the lowdown:

The Adobe Graphics Sampler does its thing best when it's doing it solo. That means you shouldn't have a bunch of other applications running in the background, you shouldn't be hooked up to beaucoup networks, and you should disable (or finally get around to ditching) the oodles of system extensions that you never use. Just make sure you don't get rid of QuickTime<sup>a</sup> -- you'll need it to dig all the far-out movies on this disc. If you don't have QuickTime, just run the SETUP.EXE file in the QUCKTIME directory and restart your computer.

For your Adobification, you'll find tutorials and other mesmerizing product info in the PRODINFO folder. All the files are in Adobe's supercool Portable Document Format (PDF). So, if you haven't already done it (where have you been?), you'll need to install the Adobe Acrobat Reader by running the ACROREAD.EXE file in the ACROREAD directory.

Sadly, QuickTime and Acrobat do not support Windows NT. Our deepest regrets. Time heals all wounds.

Last but not least, here's some legal mumbo-jumbo from our resident jazzman John Place:
