Hey man. I know, you've heard it all before. You're not stupid. People tell you, "Check out our CompuServe site! It's got lots of cool stuff! No, really! We mean it!" And when you make the effort to check the site out, it ends up being lame. But that's not the case with Stream's site on CompuServe! Would we lie to you? (Don't answer that; it's called a rhetorical question.) Not only does our site allow you to download files such as magazine articles, audio clips, video clips, and graphics, it will soon be a forum for conducting on-line conferences and interviews with famous people. We're even planning to sponsor a remix contest through our site, complete with downloadable samples. Once on CompuServe, GO INMUSIC (the Music Industry Forum). We're listed as "dig culture stream." Our site consists of a chat room, a library, and a message section.
