These programs are for the July '92 Developer's Release of Windows NT and are Shareware (NOT FREE) products.

I. Introduction

The clySmic Drag 'n' Drop utilities are true 32-bit Win32/Windows NT programs designed to provide desktop tools for the new Windows NT operating system.

Included in this first release are Paper Drop, a drag 'n' drop wallpaper loader, and EXE Type, a drag 'n' drop EXE/DLL/DRV/386 information program. These are not all the utilities that will eventually be released. More will be added in subsequent releases, including (of course) a trash/recycler program.

Register now and take advantage of our low, introductory price: only $9.95 (US).

II. Usage

Run these programs from Program Manager, File Manager, or a command prompt. Then run File Manager and drag files over to the program's icons and drop.

II. Paper Drop

Paper Drop will accept only .BMP files to be dropped onto it. When you drop them, they become the current wallpaper. In the system menu of Paper Drop are: "Always On Top," which keeps the icon above all other windows, and "Tile Wallpaper," which toggles the centering/tiling of the wallpaper.

III. EXE Type

When running Windows NT, there are a variety of executable programs on your disk: DOS executables, Windows and OS/2 1.x New Executables, OS/2 2.0 and Windows 3.1 VxD Linear Executables, and native NT Portable Executables. To find out which kind of executable a file is, just drop it on this program. Information about the executable is then displayed. EXE/DLL/DRV/386 and probably some other file extensions are all executables and can be read by this program. Future enhancements will include distinguishing the various types of portable executables (Intel, MIPS, Alpha, &c).

IV. Caveats

These programs are for Intel processors only. They will be updated for each Windows NT pre-release, and marked as such.

This is a preliminary release for a preliminary operating system. There will be changes and improvements along the way.
