Welcome to HOMEPC's Magazine's Multimedia SuperPak CD-ROM!

This disk is loaded with popular software, specially selected for home PC users. There are programs that help you organize your computer, and your life. Educational programs for kids, and unique fonts to add eye appeal to your documents. Even sound files and games, so you can have a little fun!

We've made it possible to install each of the SuperPak's programs, fonts and sound files individually. This lets you decide which files you'd like to use, and which you'll skip for now. So before you install something, read all about it in the pages that follow. Here are the remaining sections, and what they contain:

Installation

If you haven't installed your HOMEPC CD-ROM yet, it's easy. Here's how:

First, insert the CD-ROM into your CD-ROM drive. Next, select "Run ..." from Program Manager's File menu, and enter this Command Line:

This assumes your disc is in drive D:. If it's in some other drive, enter that drive's letter in place of "D".

After a few moments, you'll see our setup program's main window. Just click a button and away you go! We have buttons that allow you install our programs and files, another button that lets you "uninstall" (remove from your hard disk) our files, even a button that lets you see and hear a special greeting from Ellen Pearlman, our Editor-in-Chief. If you choose to install one of our programs, fonts or sounds you'll be able to tell us exactly which ones to install, and where to install them.

When all installations are complete, Program Manager will have one or more new folders

Note: Ignore installation instructions that appear in the manuals of the various programs. The HOMEPC Multimedia SuperPak Setup program takes care of all installation details.

ERROR: VBX File Out Of Date

If you see an error message stating a VBX file is out-of-date, it's likely another program's installation procedure has stored an old version of a .VBX file in your WINDOWS directory.

Because of the way Windows searches for files, the newest version of all .VBX files should be placed in the \WINDOWS\SYSTEM directory. Any other versions, stored elsewhere, should be removed. If not, it's possible an older, out-of-date version stored elsewhere will be loaded and run.

Unfortunately, not all installation procedure's follow this rule, and place .VBX files in wrong locations, usually the \WINDOWS directory. To correct this problem:

Backup your \WINDOWS and \WINDOWS\SYSTEM directories, then check your \WINDOWS directory for the presence of .VBX files.

If a .VBX file is found in the \WINDOWS directory, which is newer than a file by the same name in the \WINDOWS\SYSTEM directory, copy the newer file from the \WINDOWS directory to your \ WINDOWS\SYSTEM directory. You should then remove the original file from the WINDOWS directory.

If a .VBX file is found in the WINDOWS directory, which is older than a file by the same name in the WINDOWS\SYSTEM directory, simply remove the older file from the WINDOWS directory.

If a .VBX file is found in the WINDOWS directory, which is the same age as a file by the same name in the WINDOWS\SYSTEM directory, remove the original file from the WINDOWS directory.

If a .VBX file is found in the WINDOWS directory, and no file by the same name can be found in the WINDOWS\SYSTEM directory, copy the file from the WINDOWS directory. You should then remove the original file from the WINDOWS directory.

A word about Shareware

Some of the programs included in the HOMEPC Multimedia SuperPak are "shareware." This means they are being provided by their authors for a free trial period. If you decide to keep and use the program after the free trial period, a "shareware registration fee" is owed the author. The amount of this fee varies from program to program. From time to time, he'll pop to his feet and offer some running commentary on your "huge" icons, windows, cursors, etc. He will accompany his comments with broad gestures, followed by some trademark heavy-hitting, Vegas-style posturing. Users may adjust the interval between Tiny Elvis' comments in a dialog box accessed via the system menu. The interval setting is saved in the TNYELVIS.INI file, which is stored in your default Windows directory (e.g., C:\WINDOWS). An extra command ("Make Tiny Elvis Talk Now") in the system menu allows users to force Tiny Elvis into action instantly, without waiting for the interval to expire.

MVP Word Search

MVP Word Search for Windows is an easy to use computerized version of a word search puzzle. Word search is a puzzle in which you must find all the words in the word list in the diagram of letters. The words can be found in any of the eight directions (right, left, up, down, and the four diagonals). You choose the words and let Word Search for Windows do the rest. Want the words scrambled for a greater challenge? Not a problem. How about print out a copy of the puzzle to take on a trip? The puzzle can be printed using any font installed in Windows. Have an audio card? Word Search for Windows will play music in the background while you search for words.

Macintosh Font

MacFont is a Windows TrueType font with Mac character set encoding. Many translation programs will convert the CR/LF to a CR and map the Mac characters to their Windows counterparts, but none of them, of course, can map the codes that don't exist in Windows. That's why I developed MacFont--to use when you need a quick translation of a Mac text file that relies heavily on extended characters.

Sounds

Our sound files contain digitized sound in the Windows WAV format. They require Windows 3.1 or later, or Windows 3.0 with Windows Multimedia Extensions. You must also have a Windows-supported soundboard (such as a SoundBlaster) with Windows drivers, or the PC Speaker Driver.

Sound File Installation: See the Control Panel's "Sounds" applet for ways to associate the files with Windows events. They can also be played by Windows' Media Play program (if you have a sound board) or by the Sound Recorder program (if you're using the PC Speaker Driver).
