Hello!

This directory contains an Application directory and a Packages directory. From here, you may:

1.   Run this application straight from the CD.   To do this, click on the Application directory and then double click on the OmniWeb.app revealed within.   If there are any special services that might need to be installed, a README within that directory will let you know what additional steps you will need to take to install those services.

2.   Install this application on your machine for personal or general use. To do this, click on the Packages directory.   There, you shall see revealed all the packages needed to install this application.   Merely double click upon each of them in turn, and use NeXT's Installer.app to unpack these applications on your system in the appropriate directory.   If you are installing them for your personal use, you will probably want to set the installation location to your own Apps directory. Otherwise, you will probably want to log in as root and install them in the default /LocalApps location.
